If the Mardi Gras festivities served no other purpose than to make Hays Lewis stop politics for a few hours it would have served a good purpose. Hays reached Pensacola late Sunday night and until the arrival of King Priscus at high noon yesterday he talked politics until he became pale in the face. The carnival spirit got the better of him in the afternoon, though, and frivolous things filled his mind to such an extent that he forgot he was a candidate for delegate at large to the national Democratic convenien, and that his friend, Bill Milton, is running for sovernor. on, is running for governor.

Hub Allen, editor of the Milton Gazette, came to the city yesterday to bring Mrs. Allen and little Hub. Hub just couldn't stand the confetti and the pretty girls without talking, and since it is the doctor's instructions for him not to talk, he quietly stole back to Milton yesterday afternoon.

Adolphus Edwards, one of Gadaden county's best citizens, is in the city Mr. Edwards came to attend the congressional executive committee but was glad of the opportunity of remaining over until the Mardi Gras festivities are over. He is one of the leaders of progressive Democracy in Mardi Gras, but Gadsden county and is always lined for the last day. Gadsden county and is always lined up with the movements for the good of the county. Politically, Mr. Edwards says, Gadsden county looks like it will go for Trammell for governor with Milton running a close second. Claude L'Engle has it by himself in the race for congressman at large, while Emmett Wilson is strong there for district congressman.

Cooper Grisgs, the man whom everyone thinks of when Apalachicola is mentioned, and who is run-ning for district delegate to the national Democratic convention, was seen among the merry Mardi Gras crowd last night, and, despite the avoirdupois which Cooper seems to have taken en recently, he gets about with the case and grace of the college boy. He has been coming to Ponsacola ever since the Mardi Gras celebrations have been given and he is all Mardi Gras visitor. Mr. Wells said he tions have been given, and he is al-

"You seem to have a growing town "You seem to have a growing town, a big crowd, plenty of pretty wom? and lots of fun," is the way Philip Ball, a former Pensacolian, but who is new desk editor of the Jacksonville Times-Union, expressed it. Mr. Ball has gradually worked his way up in the newspaper business since he left sacola until now he occupies a sition second only to that of his years since Mr. Ball has visited Pen-sacola and he was pleasantly impressed city. With Mr. Ball, taking in the Mardt Gras festivities, is Harry R. Culley, Jr., assistant city editor of the Times-Union, who is epicying his first visit to the Deep Water City.

Judge J. W. Leath, county judge of Calhoun county, squirmed in his seat during the session of the congressional neon. The judge is one of those good fellows who does not like any of the good times to go to waste and he wanted to be out among the street throng. Judge Leath is a candidate for sheriff of his home county and as he usually gets what he goes after he will probably be the next sheriff of Caibaum county.

Dan Jordan, of this city, is among the Georgia. Mr. Jordan is enjoying his visit very much and is greatly pleased with Pensacola. He will spend the Milton A. Smith, editor of the Talla-hassee True Democrat, attended the congressional committee, meeting held in Pensacola yesterday. Mr. Smith is enjoying the contrast of life in the Capital City to that of the carnival season in the Deep Water City. Use-less to say that he is keeping his eyes open and finds the carnival crowd equally as entertaining as a wet and dry election fight.

Al Hogeboom, of Panama City, well known throughout West and Middle Florida, is among the many carnival visitors. Mr. Hogeboom comes to Pensacola every year, and a carnival with-out him would not be the real Pensa

Uncle Nat is the same genial, whole souled person that he was twenty years ago and he is known to practically everyone in the state. Hays Lewis asked Uncle Nat how he felt about Mr. Milton and Emsaid they suited him exactly, and when Hays asked him how they always man-aged to agree on politicians, Uncle Nat's answer was, "You never can tell, Hays, but some say it is because are just natural born damn fools."

great deal of confidence that he is going to be the next state treasurer of Florida, says next to having the people vote for him he likes to see them have good time. "They are doing that here today," he said.

J. Ed Stokes, of Graceville, editor of the Hivertiser and an all round West Florida booster, decided that he could not stay away from Pensacola during Mardi Gras and feel right about it. He came over yesterday and is enjoy-ing his stay very much. Mr. Stokes is making the race for the legislature from Jackson county, and, unless all signs fall, he will be successful. He is a real progressive Democrat and represents those principles which benefit the common people. Mr. Stokes took occasion to say that he felt sure the Rube editors would win the ball game from The Journal on April 1.

C. V. Varnadore, of Wewahitchka, a well known naval stores operator of that section, is among the Mardi Gras visitors in the city. Mr. Varnadore came to Pensacola primarily on a business trip, but managed to make busi-ness fit in with the carnival season.

New Orleans Futures.

New Orleans, Feb. 19.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points. Cables were fairly favorable, although private messages from England spoke in a pessimistic manner concerning the threatened goal strike. The market were a decided holiday air and the volume of business in the early trading was small. The weather over the cotton beit was very favorable but this did not influence prices adversely as several reports of a continued good spot demand in the Eastern belt were received. At the end of the first hour, prices were 5 to 7 points up.

The entire merning session was steady. Bulls offered enough support to give the market an advancing tendency. The bears were less aggressive than they were last week and did not show any inclination to increase their short lines. clination to increase their short lines. Bulls were able to make some capital out of reports from the interior of the cotton belt showing that presarations for the new crop were decidedly backward.
